Mrs. Sadie Gallagher Abbott was called to Lynn, Mass., last week, by the death of her father.

Mrs. Eugene P. Smith is away on a week's visit to her parents, Capt. and Mrs. A. D. Alexander, at Richmond.
Thieves recently made a break at James Pledge's slaughter-house. There is evidence that it was the work of local talent.

Wendell Rounds of South Paris is behind the counter at F. P. Stone's drug store during Mr. Stone's vacation at the seashore.
Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Abbott of Lewiston lost their only child, a bright boy 13 months old, last week Tuesday. Mrs. Abbott's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McKay, also Hosea McKay and Sadie Hasty went to the funeral on Thursday.

John W. York and wife have gone to Barrington, N. S., to visit relatives, and will be away during August and September. Their vacation was spent at Yarmouth on the western extremity of the Nova Scotia peninsula, and thence southeasterly by the Coast Railway of Nova Scotia some seventy miles to Barrington.

There will be services at the Congregational church, Aug. 11 and 12. Prof. A. W. Anthony of Lewiston will preach both Sundays. In the evening an address will be given on the Holy Land as seen by Prof. Anthony himself. He is one of the most brilliant men in the State and an able and interesting preacher. His invitation is extended to all the churches in the place not holding services, and to the people of South Paris Congregational church to attend. Prof. Anthony will preach at the Center church at 2:30 o'clock.

The school committee had a meeting, Friday. It was voted to make repairs on the Frost hill and Chapel school houses. The rural schools are expected to begin on Sept. 9 though changes of date may be made for the convenience of the people in the districts. The school at No. 1 will be reopened if a sufficient number of scholars be found to attend it. The names are as follows:

Frost—Edith M. Moore.
Holt—Unassigned.

An Old Ladies' Home, Norway.
There has been considerable talk of late about the establishing of a home for aged ladies in this county, but nothing has been done and if there is ever to be a home something must be done besides talk. There is a building in this town suitable for the home and it can be bought for about three thousand dollars. Now start a paper collecting funds for the purchase of that building, and give every person in the county an opportunity to put in something to establish a home for aged women who have no home.

How well the house is adapted to such a purpose may be seen from a little description. The cellar is large, rat-proof and cement bottomed. The first story contains two parlors, sitting room, dining-room, a very large kitchen, storeroom, pantries, and a huge laundry with room, besides hallways and closets. Bath tubs, besides the kitchen into a combined reception room and office, two chambers for those unable to climb stairs, sitting-room, the kitchen into a new dining-room with shed would easily make storeroom with laundry, store-room and shed kitchen and all plenty large enough. Three good stairways reach the second story where there are nine large water, two fitted with hot and cold water, two smaller rooms suitable for chambers, which large bath-room and vacant room which could be made into two more chambers. The attic could be made five large rooms. Every which two are already finished. Every room in the house would receive the sunlight.

The house was the residence of the late John L. Horne, and Mrs. Horne is anxious to see it made into such a home. It is the one thing needed to make a success of it.

Mr. and Mrs. George Horr recently visited at G. W. Noyes', Gorham, N. H. Albion A. Swan has left the N. & P. St. Ry. and taken a job on Portland Street Railroad.

T. L. Webb of Berlin, N. H., is to move his tailoring rooms into the Savings Bank block in that city.
There is a story going the rounds to the effect that the town has bargained for a gravel bank near the corner this side of Norway Lake. The selection says that they know nothing of any such trade.

The Radcliffe and Spinney factory office crews exchanged quarters, Wednesday. All that remains to be made of the shift of the two establishments is the packing-rooms and that will be done before the week ends.

A Solid Gold Watch
for $1.98

Is not such a bargain as
Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy
at $1.00 per bottle. The watch can only give you perfect time, but the Remedy will give you perfect health. Now, which is better, the time or the health? Often a "good time" is the starting of "bad health."

Read this over again and you will catch the point all right. You have read thus far just out of curiosity, but here's where we want to impress something on you. We manufacture the

Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy
for two purposes. One is to cure sickness, and the other is to make money. If we don't do the former, we can't do the latter.
Isn't that so? No matter how much we advertise a medicine, if it didn't actually cure we could sell as well to pay expenses.

Now, if you are not feeling just right, if you get up with a dull headache, taste a little off, feel pains in the back, or anything out of the ordinary, you probably have some trouble with your KIDNEYS. May not amount to much, but better stop it before it gets any worse. Try a bottle of

Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy
only $1.00, and see if you don't feel better in a few days. We know you will. All druggists sell it, or you may write to the Dr.
DAVID KENNEDY CORPORATION, Rondout,
N. Y., and they will send you a trial bottle free, with their Booklet A.

The Present.

The sun may shine behind the clouds,
That doesn't help me any.
If to feel its warmth I'm not allowed
I do not care a penny.

For all its hidden brightness
Is gilded and vast, and glad,
While I sit in the dark clouds of woe's
Asphyxiating sadness.

What tho' each rolling cloud possess
A glow of silver lining,
If it fails to cheer me, I confess,
Or lesson my repining.

To the gold and silver that I need
To find my empty pocket
Is scarce and shy with me indeed,
Tho' I implore or mock it.

Tho' every road must have an end
And every lane a turning,
If our strength fail ere we reach it
Are we to blame for spinning
Such unproductive twaddle,
And return to be assisted by
The crutch that seems to wobble?

Tomorrow's hope is well enough
If we can reach tomorrow.
Today's as far as I can get
I must confess with sorrow.
And I ask for the joys,
Aye even humbly bow,
Imparting satisfaction from
The vast unknown.

Life's Changes.

Life's changes are like the seasons
Which come and go so fast,
And some are filled with gladness,
And some are filled with woe.

Our children are like the springtime,
So joyous and so bright,
And we are like the autumn,
When the leaves are falling.

Our youth is like the summer,
When the sun is shining bright,
And our old age is like the winter,
When the snow is falling.

Our life is like the rainbow,
Which comes and goes so fast,
And our death is like the sunset,
When the sun is setting.

Our love is like the flower,
Which grows and blooms so fast,
And our grief is like the storm,
Which comes and goes so fast.

Our hope is like the star,
Which shines so bright and true,
And our despair is like the fog,
Which comes and goes so fast.

Our faith is like the rock,
Which stands so firm and true,
And our doubt is like the sand,
Which comes and goes so fast.

Our courage is like the lion,
Which roars so loud and true,
And our cowardice is like the sheep,
Which comes and goes so fast.

Our strength is like the eagle,
Which soars so high and true,
And our weakness is like the dove,
Which comes and goes so fast.

Our wisdom is like the owl,
Which sees so far and true,
And our folly is like the pig,
Which comes and goes so fast.

No swathing, no spray and no rollers.

Certainly no vessel ever took the water so gracefully. It was soon after 10.20 o'clock when the workmen commenced to cut away the few remaining struts.

Directly in front of the ship was a large stand on which stood a few friends from Maine, together with Charles Cramp, president of the ship building company. He stood close to Miss Anderson, who was seated in front of him, with a child on her lap.

At 10.41 the last strut was cut and the vessel gave a sharp, start ahead.
Now! cried Mr. Cramp to Miss Anderson.
Reaching out over the rail of the stand, guiding a bottle of native
vine, "If Christen thee Maine," she said, the vessel gave a sharp, start ahead.

MR. GEDGE'S CATSPA

By Cutcliffe Hyne.

Copyright, 1901, by Cutcliffe Hyne.

However, it began to be plain that as they drew nearer to the bay the weather grew worse steadily, and at last it came to be a choice between batten down the hatches both forward and aft or being incontinently swamped. Hour after hour Kettle, in his blue coat and forward across the upper bridge, watching his steamboat like a cat, and holding on with his order all the very last moment. But at last he gave the command to batten down, and both watches rushed to help the carpenter carry it out. The men were horribly frightened. It seemed to them that in that gale and with that sea running it was insane not to have batten down long before.

The hands clustered on the lurching from decks with the water swirling against them waist high and shipped the heavy hatch covers and got the tarpaulins over, and then the Norwegian carpenter keyed all fast with the wedges, working like some amphibious animal, half his time under water.

The Sultan of Labuan was fitted with no cowl ventilators to her holds, and even if these had been fitted they would have been carried away. So from the moment of batten down the gas which oozed from the coal mixed with the air till the whole ship became one large explosive bomb, which the merest spark would touch off. Captain Kettle called his mate to him and gave explicit orders.

"You know what a powder hulk is like, Mr. Mate?"

"Aye," said Murgatroyd.

"Well, this ship is a sight more dangerous, and we have got to take care if we do not want to go to heaven quick. It's got to be all lights out aboard this ship till the weather eases and we can get hatches off again. Go round now and see it done yourself, Mr. Murgatroyd, please. Watch the doctor douse the galley fire and then go and take away all the forecastle matches, so the men can't smoke. Put out the side lights, the masthead light and the binnacle lamps. The quarter-masters must steer as best they can from the miller card."

"Aye, aye. But you don't mean the side lights, too, do you? There's a big lot of shipping here in the bay, and we might as well get run down." The old man caught an ugly look from Kettle's face and broke off, and, grumbling some ancient saw about "obeying orders if you break owners," he shuffled off down the ladder.

Heavier and heavier grew the squalls, carrying with them spindrift which beat like gravel against the two old skinned tenants of the collier's upper bridge; worse and worse grew the sea. Great green waves reared up like walls, crashed on board and filled the lower decks with boiling, yeasty surge. The funnel stays and the scanty rigging hummed like harp strings to the gale. Deep though she was in the water, there were times when her stern heaved up clear and the propeller raced in a noisy Catherine wheel of fire and foam. On every side—ahead, abeam and astern—were nodding yellow lights flicked about by unseen ships over thunderous, unseen waves. It was a regular Biscay gale, such as all vessels may count on in that corner of the seas one voyage out of eight, a gale with heavy seas in the midst of a dense crowd of shipping. But there was nothing in it which seamanship under ordinary circumstances could not meet.

Captain Kettle hung on hour after hour under shelter of the doggers on the upper bridge, a small wind brushed figure in yellow oilskins and black rubber thigh boots. About such a "breeze" in an ordinary way he would have thought little. Taking his vessel through it with the minimum of danger was only part of the daily mechanical routine. But he stood there, a prey to the liveliest anxiety. The thousand and one dangers in the bay appeared before him magnified. If the ship, for any sudden and unavoidable reason, went down, the odds were that he himself and all hands would be drowned, but at the same time Gedge would be gratified in so easily touching the coveted insurance money. The fear of death did not worry the little skipper in the very least degree whatever, but he had a most thorough objection to being in any way Mr. Gedge's catspaw.

Twice they had near escapes from being run down. The first time was from a sudden, blundering Cardiff ore steamer, which was driving north through the thick of it with very little of herself showing except two slumpy masts and a brine washed smokestack. She would have obviously drowned out any lookout on her fore deck, and the bridge officers got too much spindrift in their eyes to see with any clearness. But time is money, and even Cardiff ore steamers must make passages, and so her master drove her blindly ahead full steam, slap sloop wallow, and trusted that other people would get out of his way.

Kettle's keen eyes picked her up out of the sea mists just in time and ported his own helm and missed her sheer bow with the Sultan of Labuan's quarters by a short two fathoms. A touch in that insane turmoil of sea would have sent both steamers down to the shells and the flickering weed below, but there was no touch, and so each went her way with merely a perfunctory interchange of curses, which were blown into nothingness by the gale. Escapes on these occasions don't count, and it is etiquette not to speak about them ashore afterward.

The second shave came from a big, white painted Cape liner, which came up from astern, lit like a theater, and almost defying the very gale itself. Her lookouts and officers were on the watch for lights. But the miller collier, which was half her time masked by the sea like a half tide rock, never struck their notice.

Kettle, with all his shipmaster's sturdy dislike for shifting his helm when he legally had the right of road, held on till the great knifelike bow was not a score of yards from his taffrail. But then he gave way, roared out an order to the Quartermaster at the wheel and the Sultan of Labuan fell away to port. As if the coalboat had been a magnet, the Cape liner followed, drawing nearer hand over fist.

Changing direction further was as dangerous as keeping on as he was, so Kettle bawled to the Quartermaster to "steady on that," and then the great white steam hotel suddenly seemed to wake to her danger and swerved off on her old course again. So close were they that Kettle fancied he could hear the quick rattled rattle of her wheel engines as they gave her a "hard down" helm. And he certainly saw officers on her high upper bridge end peering at him through the drifting sea smoke with a curiosity that was more than pleasing.

"Trying to pick out the old tub's name," he mused grimly, "so as to report me for carrying no lights. By James, I wish some of those dandy passenger boat officers could try this low down end of the tramping trade for a bit."

Night went and day came, gray and wet and desolate. The heavier squalls had passed away, but a whole gale still remained, and the sea was if anything heavier. The coalboat rarely showed all of herself at once above the water. Her progress was a succession of dives, her decoration, when she was visible, a fringe of spouting scuppers. Watch had succeeded watch with the dogged patience of sailormen, but watch after watch Kettle hung on behind the canvas doggers at the weather end of the bridge. He was red eyed and white cheeked, his torpedo beard was foul with sea salt, he was unpleasant to look upon, but he was undeniably very much awake, and when the accident came, which he concluded was Mr. Gedge's effort to realize the coalboat's insurance, he was quite ready to cope with emergencies.

From somewhere in the bowels of the ship there came the muffled boom of an explosion. The bridge sprang up beneath his feet so that he was very nearly wrenched from his hold, and the iron main deck, which at that moment he had been free of water, rippled and heaved as a tin biscuit box moves when it is kicked. There was a tinkle of broken glass as some blown out skylights crashed back upon the deck.

He looked forward and he looked aft and to his surprise saw that both hatches were still in place and that very little actual damage was visible, and then he had his attention occupied by another matter. From the stokehold, from the forecastle and from the engine room the frightened crew poured out into the open, and some scared wretch cried out to "lower away, sem boats."

Here was a situation that needed dealing with at once, and Kettle was the man to do it. From beneath his oilskins he lugged out the revolver which they knew so painfully already and showed it with ostentation. "By James," he shouted, "do you want to be taught who's captain here? I'll give cheap lessons if you ask."

His words reached them above the hooting and brawl of the gale, and they were cowed into sullen obedience. "Carpenter, take a couple of men, and away below with you and see what's broke. You blessed split trowsers engine chancies, away down to your engine room or I'll come and kick you there. The second mate and his watch get tar paulins over those broken skylights. Where's Mr. Murgatroyd? In his bunk, I suppose, as usual. Not his watch; no affair of his if the ship's blown to heaven when he's off duty. Here, you steward, go and root out Mr. Murgatroyd."

The men bustled about after their errands, and the engines, which had stopped for a minute, began to rumble on again. Captain Kettle paraded the swaying bridge and awaited developments.

Presently a bareheaded steward fought his way up the bridge ladder against the tearing wind and bawled out some startling news: "It's Mr. Murgatroyd's room that's been blown up, sir; made a 'orrid mess of it. Chips says 'e picked up 'is lighted pipe in the alleyway, sir, an 'it must 'a been that that fixed the gas."

"The blamed old thick head!" said Kettle savagely.

"'E was arskin for you, sir, was the mate, though we couldn't rightly make out what 'e said."

"He won't be pleased to see me. Smoking, by James, was he?"

"The mate's burnt up, like a piece of coke," said the steward persuasively. "'E cawn't last long. It's a marvel 'ow 'e's alive at all, sir."

The carpenter came up on the bridge. "Dose blow up was not so bad for der ole ship, sir. She not got any plates started dot I can see. Dey have der bilge pumps runnin, but dere's no mud water. Und der mate, sir—he say 'e would like to see you. He's in ver' bad way."

"All right," said Kettle; "I'll go and see him." He called up the Italian second mate on to the bridge and gave over charge of the ship to him and then went below. The gas explosion had made havoc of all woodwork and fittings, but apparently still undamaged, the ship was still undamaged. The scare of the sailor's instinct of down, and with were commencing to tidiness, the larger fragments of make fast which were rattling about among the stop of water and coal and broken crockery to the danglings of the ship.

The author of all the mischief, the stupid old man, who, through sheer crass ignorance, had gone to bed and smoked a pipe in this powder magazine, lay horribly injured in the littered alleyway, with a burst of straw cushion under the shocking remnants of his head. Most of his injuries were plain to the eye, and it was a marvel that he lingered on at all. It was very evident that he could not live for long, and it was clear, too, that he wanted to speak.

Kettle's resentment died at the sight of this poor charred cinder of humanity, and he knelt in the litter and listened. The sea noisss and the ship noises without almost drowned the words, and the old mate's voice was very weak. It was only here and there he could pick up a sentence.

"Nearly got to wind'ard of you, skipper. It was me—Gedge paid me £50 for the job—scuttle her—after Gib would 'a done it, too—in spite of your teeth."

The old fellow broke off, and Kettle leaned near to him. "How were you going to scuttle her?" he asked.

There was no answer. A second time he repeated the question and then again a third time. The mate heard him. The sea roared outside; the wind

"Nearly got to wind'ard of you, skipper," boomed overhead; the cluttered wreckage clanged about the alleyway. The old man was past speech, but he opened an eye, his one remaining eye, and slowly and solemnly winked.

It was his one recorded attempt at humor during a lifetime, and the effort was his last. His jaw dropped, wagging to the third of the ship, his eye opened in a glassy, unseeing stare, and he was as dead a thing as the iron deck he lay upon.

"Well, matey," said Kettle, apostrophizing the poor charred form, "we've been shipmates before, and I never liked you. But, by James, you had your points. You shall be buried by a pukka parson in Gib and have a stone put over your ugly old head if I have to pay for it myself. I think I can hammer out a bit of verse, too, which'll make that stone a thing people will remember."

"By James, though, won't Gedge be mad over this? Gedge will think I spotted the game you were playing for when he murdered you out of hand. Well, that's all right, and it won't hurt you, matey. I want Gedge to understand I'm a man that's got to be dealt straight with. I want Mr. Blessed Gedge to understand that I'm not the kind of lamb to make into a catspaw by any manner of means. I bet he does tumble to that too. But I bet also that he sacks me from this berth before I've got the coals over his plans, and as he can't lose the Sultan of Labuan with me as her skipper he'll jerk another old man into the chart-house on the end of a wire who'll do the job more to his satisfaction."

The Norwegian carpenter came up and asked a question.

"No, no, Chips. Put the canvas away. I want you to knock up some sort of a box for the poor old mate, and we'll take him to Gib and plant him there in style. I owe him a bit. We'll all get safe enough to Port Said now."

Off for Manila.

F. D. Sawyer of Otisfield Gore sailed from San Francisco, July 23, with 600 other young college men, for the Philippines, where they will teach in the schools of the island. He writes as follows from San Francisco:

"We are now on the transport Thomas en route for Manila. As we can mail letters by the pilot when he returns, I take this chance to write a few words. It was a very interesting scene in the building occupied by Quartermaster Lang, yesterday morning, when about 500 teachers crowded into the building for the necessary transportation papers. They were there long before the officials were ready and as each one feared that some one else might get better accommodations than he, they waited in line. Some of the boys became impatient and then there were songs, cat calls and finally the long drawn out cry so familiar to the college man of 'We want Lang!'

"I nearly gave those straight-faced officials a fit to hear any such sound or words from the rooms of men of letters to silence them, but it was very evident that the young men had not learned their first duty of a soldier—to obey orders, for it was by no means a silent crowd that waited about. After many waits and trials, we were at last accorded the necessary papers to secure admission on board the transport. And now we are on our way—about 600 of us. Our requisition called for state-room accommodations, but if these rooms are state rooms, they are bunched for about 200 each, though they are clean and apparently very comfortable. I have just taken my first dinner on the transport. It was very good, and if it is a fair sample, we shall not suffer from hunger on the way. We are now getting out toward the Golden Gate."

If it doesn't pay to advertise, why do the heaviest business firms in the world spend millions in that way? Is it because they want to donate those millions of dollars to the newspaper and magazine publishers, or because they don't know as 'stockkeepers' in a country town, who say money is thrown away, or do not to the man to whom it is paid?

When a woman doesn't take any interest in her housework—When the least exertion tires her—When her back aches constantly—her head troubles her—limbs pain, and she feels generally miserable, it's a pretty sure indication that her kidneys are not doing their duty.

That backache is simply kidney ache.

The poison the kidneys should take out of the blood is left in, and is breeding all sorts of dire diseases—But you can stop it—

Doan's Kidney Pills

Act directly on the kidneys—strengthen them, help them to do their duty.

Read what one grateful woman has to say about it.

Mrs. S. Lake, professional nurse, residing at 39 Temple street, Nashua, N. H., says:

"I suffered my great pleasure early in the spring of 1896 to testify to the wonderful value of Doan's Kidney Pills. I had suffered for four or five years with severe pain across the small of my back and had been unable to obtain any permanent relief until I took a course of this treatment. It afforded me greater pleasure now, and it is nearly three years since I gave my original statement for publication to say that my opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills has been strengthened instead of weakened by lapse of time. Not only was the cure effected in my case permanent, but I know of many others in Nashua who have reason to be thankful for the existence of this remarkable preparation."

Victory for Rumford.

In the action of John A. Decker against the inhabitants of Rumford, a decision in behalf of the defendant was handed down, Monday, from the law court, the plaintiff's exceptions being overruled. The receipt in the case, drawn by Judge Savage, says: "The plaintiff in his declaration alleges that the defendant owes him for services as selectman and assessor for 602 days at $1.50 a day. This is the sole cause of action stated. The jury found that the plaintiff was actually and necessarily employed in the service of the town for 12 days only and returned a verdict for $18. The plaintiff, therefore, recovered all the damages that he proved, under his allegation. "There is nothing in the declaration which counts on any salary voted by the town, as such. The plaintiff accordingly, was not harmed by the instructions complained of, whether they were correct or not. They were both immaterial and harmless."

SOUTH WOODSTOCK.

Lily Inman of Lewiston is staying at Geo. Stevens'. Consider Farrar is one of the sick ones at this writing. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Davis returned to Ashland, Monday. A. M. Andrews made a trip to Oxford on business, Monday. Selden Barrett of Sumner was at A. M. Andrews', Sunday. H. O. Nute of Boston has been in the place for the past week. G. Q. Perham and wife attended Pomona Grange at West Minot, Tuesday. Mabel Curtis of Snow's Falls is visiting at A. D. Bryant's. Leslie Curtis of Portland is also there. He is having a hard time with rheumatism. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Perkins and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Harlow will celebrate the anniversary of their marriage, next Monday night, at G. L. Whitman's.

SOUTH RUMFORD.

Major Allen is driving a span. Flora Curtis is working for George Elliott. Mary Fuller is working for O. K. Cary at the Falls. Hiram Cary from the Falls is staying with his cousin, W. F. Clark. Wallie Clark has finished haying and with his hired man, Howard Miller, is helping M. L. and M. A. Wyman. Mr. Curtis and son Arthur helped C. M. Elliott finish haying, and Dr. J. F. Putnam and Pliny Wing are helping Perley Putnam finish.

BUCKFIELD.

Quarantine is raised and the world was again. The grading is going on at the library grounds. Secretary Long is expected at any time now.

The Naziscoot History meet with Mrs. Edward Bicknell of Hartford. O. H. Hersey and J. E. Warren of Portland were in town over Sunday. The Buckfield Literary Club will meet on Wednesday with Mrs. A. W. Horton of Sumner.

Tuesday, Aug. 13, is the day that the Custard Pie Association hold a jollification at Swan pond.

Bertha Lunt has returned from a two weeks' outing at Kennebago lake, bringing some fine trout along.

The young man Stevens, son of architect J. C. Stevens, of Portland, was in town recently. His sisters returned home with him.

A hearing on telephone lines is set for Tuesday with a view for permits to set poles. Meanwhile the setting of poles is going on the same.

Silas McKenney of Boston is staying with H. D. Irish for a time. He is a regular comer in summer time. He was reared in Hartford.

Some of the guests at Hotel Long of late were Mr. and Mrs. Petto Isola, two sons, and Mrs. H. S. Blood of Newton, Mass.; Fannie Vose of Lynn; Mrs. F. B. Haskell of Augusta; Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Adams of Augusta; and Sheriff Tucker of South Paris.

Among the late arrivals are Mrs. Joseph Emery and son of Boston; Baxter of the Portland Packing Co.; J. O. Falkner, reporter for the Lewiston Journal; L. K. and C. P. Buck of Traverse City, Mich.; sons of Charles Buck, formerly of this town; Mrs. Abby Holbrook and daughters of Braintree, Mass.; Harold Hall of New York.

EAST WATERFORD.

We understand that parties at Rumford Falls contemplate the importing of 500 Italians to meet their pressing wants. Henry O. Rolfe and wife have kindly taken charge of the telephone office, which already has proved a great convenience.

Will Emery was called home from Rumford Falls by the death of his uncle, G. F. Ames. His wife also came from Lewiston, where she is working at present. Both will return, this week.

A sharp, smart looking but roughly dressed Yankee with a well filled valise came to this place, Monday, inquiring for work. We judged him either a rogue or detective. No one wished to hire.

Generous Fernando Ames, a prominent and highly respected citizen, died, Aug. 24th, after a long and painful illness, aged 58 years. He was a kind father, husband and neighbor, a skillful and widely known mechanic, and will be greatly missed not only in his family and neighborhood but in the community at large. He leaves a wife, three sons, a daughter and only sister to mourn his loss. The funeral rights were held on Tuesday afternoon conducted by the Mount Treadm Lodge of Masons of which he was a prominent member.

A great amount of hay still remains uncut. The cutting and curing like a wounded snake drags its long length along. Still as rule grass is not suffering as commonly, as the bottom is still green and gaining. Hood crops are looking finely. Many prophesy a short crop of potatoes but we deem it too early to judge owing to late planting. The present is like to prove an Arctic summer, short and progressive. The apple crop promises light but better than anticipated a few weeks ago. We can't judge correctly of the apple crop till about the middle of August. Help is very scarce every where.

SUMNER.

Hersey Keene went to Portland, last Friday.

Velma Brackett of Auburn is visiting at W. E. Bowker's.

Ethel Paine of Rockland, Mass., is visiting at G. F. Dyer's.

Linn Dyer, who has been working in Massachusetts, has returned home.

George Newell of Abington, Mass., is visiting his mother, Mrs. Mary Newell. Mrs. Albert Ames and daughter Belle of South Paris are visiting relatives here.

Ada and Theron Glover are visiting their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Abbott.

Charles Berry and Willie Hammond of New Hampshire visited at E. H. Thompson's, last week.

Mrs. Lydia Willey and daughter Edith of Cambridge, Mass., visited her father, Earl P. Sturtevant, last week.

Mrs. Susie Cole and Mrs. Eva York of Canton visited their mother, Mrs. Laura Sturtevant, one day recently.

Mrs. May Bartlett of Haverhill, Mass., and Jennie Varney of New York are visiting their mother, Mrs. Lydia Varney.

We think summer people have commenced to celebrate old home week in earnest, this year, by the way they are coming home.

EAST HEBRON.

On next Sabbath the time and place of the Sunday school picnic is to be decided.

Report says Mrs. Emily Keene has decided not to teach school, the coming autumn.

Orland Bonney from Auburn is staying a short time with his uncle, Sherman Bonney, and family.

Mrs. Manly McFarland and little daughters, Ella, Lena and Meta of South Portland are visiting at W. O. Perry's.

Mrs. McFarland and Mrs. F. H. Perry are sisters.

Horse Race, Fryeburg.

There was a horse race on the West Oxford fair ground, Tuesday. It was an interesting one and called out a big crowd of people. A fine lot of teams came from the neighboring town of North Conway, N. H.

The Eastman House sent a couple of handsome drags and several smaller rigs. One drag was beautifully decorated in yellow and white, while its occupants were a gay crowd of young ladies dressed in the same colors. The Oxford, Fryeburg, sent a four horse drag with a fine drag, and other teams. At two o'clock the grand stand was filled and Starter E. N. Fox sent the two horses off, Roseneath at the pole, which she easily kept through the mile.

In the second heat Almada did some good work, but failed to come up to Roseneath, and the cheering for the little horse was loud and long.

The horse Almada is owned by Littlefield of Conway, N. H. Roseneath is owned by Melville Eastman of North Conway, N. H.

Time: 1.13, 2.23, 2.23. Purse $100, all to winner.

Arthur Jack, who has a string of fast horses in training at the fair grounds, gave some interesting exhibitions of speed between the heats.

SOUTH ALBANY.

Mrs. Lydia Sawin is visiting relatives at Norway.

Elmer Henty has been at work for J. F. Lord, haying.

Elliott Kimball has been at work haying for Mrs. A. N. Phillips.

Benjamin Killings of Bolster's Mills was in town, last week.

L. A. Sawin and son Holden went to Norway, last Wednesday.

Roy Lord has bought a surrey of Clifford Eastman at North Waterford.

Henry Sawin and wife visited her sister at North Bridgton, last week.

Mrs. Edna Sessions and two children, Walter and Bertha, of Providence, R. I., are at E. P. Dresser's for the season.

Abby Crocker of Bridgton Center and Seth Berry of Sandy Creek called at Savin Brothers', last Wednesday, on their way to Rumford.

Mrs. Nora Abbott is visited by her brother, Henry Webber of Boston. Mrs. Henry Chaplin of Sandy Creek is staying at the same place.

Elmer Henley and wife, Sadie Henley and Annie Sawin went fishing for hornpots by lantern-light on Crooked river bridge, last Tuesday evening. A catch of 35 was reported, also lots of fun.

NORWAY CENTER.

The arrivals at Maplecroft, last week, were the three Misses Morris, two Misses Wood, Mr. Cousins, Walter Hobbs and Arthur Alden. This week, Mr. and Mrs. Mayover from New York, and more are expected.

John E. Heymer, S. Herbert Wiley, C. B. Somers, of Newton, Mass.; Dr. L. Bryant of Cambridge; Wm. H. S. Hill of Watertown, Mass.; and A. W. Gibby of Somerville, Mass., are stopping for two weeks at Fernleaf cottage. They are down for a good time and help enliven the lake by songs and music. Mr. Hill has kindly consented to sing a solo at the Congregational church, next Sunday.

NORTH NORWAY.

J. S. Herriek is working for Sylvester York on his new house.

Arrell Kimball from Ipswich, Mass., is visiting at C. A. Frost's.

H. S. Pearson and Aldro French were out fishing, Wednesday, in the drenching rain, it was fun all the same.

Henry C. Frost from Aurora, Ill., a brother of C. A. Frost, is here. He has been twenty-three years since he was here. He has been in the employ of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy R.R. for a number of years.

C. A. Frost and his brother Henry were in Bridgton, the first of the week, and called on friend Mike Kerwin at the Pondcherry mill and were shown through the several rooms. They are doing a good business at this mill, a good part of the time running night and day.

WATERFORD.

Our village was never better filled with boarders.

Dr. A. L. Libby and wife spent a few days in Gardiner, last week.

Mrs. L. G. Stone has so far recovered from her sickness as to be able to do the most of her work.

Mrs. Wm. Doten, who has been spending some weeks here, returned to her home in South Paris, last week.

Mrs. Baker and her granddaughter, Elmer Huse with Mrs. Ed Baker of Winchester are at Carrie H. Knight's; also Mrs. Drew of Boston.

Mr. Tirem Lodge, F. & A. M., was called upon, Tuesday, to perform the last rites of respect to the memory of brother G. F. Ames who died, Aug. 4.

Three young men, boarders in the place, Henry Gibbons, Loney Callamore and Harry Taylor started on a pedestrian tour to the White mountains, Tuesday.

THE SHAW BUSINESS COLLEGE.

The above named institution will begin its 17th year upon Sept. 1st. It has recently issued a beautiful catalogue which is an elegant specimen of the printer's art, and can be secured by application in person or by mail. This school is becoming very popular in this locality from year to year, and numbers many of our young people among its students. Several from here have recently graduated, and others are now in attendance who speak in the highest terms of the school. During the present vacation season all of the furnishings which have been in use for a number of years have been discarded and new quarters oak furniture put in. Steam heat has also been introduced, and many other improvements made. The young people from this neighborhood speak particularly of the combined good of study there, no extra being made for the same. We heartily recommend all who are ambitious to secure a "bread and butter" education to write for the new catalogue. See ad. elsewhere.
